7 QUESTIONS TO ASK

WRITTEN BY DOUG FRANKLIN

Organized youth pastors plan months ahead, but how do you plan ahead for a mission trip next summer when you don't know what's happening with the pandemic? The answer is to still make a plan.

You have to assume that the world is going to move forward and that there is going to be a vaccination and we are going to return to some sort of new normal.

Keep in mind that even if there is a vaccination, we will still need to be vigilant and make sure that students stay safe wherever they serve.

So, this year picking a mission trip is going to be a little trickier.

I've put together seven questions you should be asking to make sure that you have the right partner to guide you to an effective mission trip.

7 QUESTIONS TO ASK BEFORE PURCHASING A MISSION TRIP IN A COVID WORLD

- Do you have experience leading low-contact trips?
- Do the ministries you're partnering with (to do work projects and relational ministry) have low-contact safety procedures in place?
- Who are your staff and how much training do they receive?
- How much money per student do you spend on work projects?
- What is your return rate?
- What is your intentional spiritual development plan to grow my students through your program?
- What Pre-Trip and Post-Trip Training do you offer?
